

worth the read...and an open thread...

Posted by Prof. Goose on May 14, 2005 - 9:00am

I have developed an affinity for the folks over at Community Solution. They have some really neat discussions and ideas there regarding sustainable development and community-based ideas. Here's their latest newsletter, which I would encourage all of you to read.

I'm also opening up this comment thread for some thoughts on the Community Solution document or any other thoughts related to sustainable development. (We have some pretty smart folks reading our blog, and some of the insights generated in the comment box have been really interesting...keep it up! We appreciate your insights and participation in making this blog work.)

Also, an FYI: it's going to be a slow posting weekend here, way too many papers and other grading to get through for both of us, plus HO's traveling. That's the problem with this time of year for academics!

I may also go back and dig out some greatest hits, etc., at some point. I'll also try to do a linkfest this evening as well.

Technorati Tags: peak oil, oil

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Share Alike 3.0 United States License.