

Perhaps we need an open thread?

Posted by Heading Out on February 28, 2006 - 12:18am

Topic: Miscellaneous

(Grin) For those not coal-inclined, (or perhaps now the MMS) you might want to note that the January figures from a different source are showing an OPEC drop of about 460,000 bd.

And for those interested in natural gas, drilling in the Barnett Shale continues, giving you a sense of how progress on a well occurs. As for the rest, herewith enjoy this open thread...

[editor's note, by Prof. Goose] Thanks to TF for bringing this piece to our attention, a prominent news source (Boston Globe) with a laissez-faire attitude (after playing he said/she said). Quality reporting there folks, way to help with the public debate, eh?

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Share Alike 3.0 United States License.