If you haven't seen the Gas Buddy Price Map yet, you probably should. Anyone want to combine it with the gasoline grade map (which I can't seem to find right now...) that has 43 different grades of gasoline for US consumption?

And, don't forget to check out this article which states:

DOHA, April 24 (Reuters) - OPEC ministers conceded on Monday there was nothing they could do to halt surging oil prices that threaten consumer nations' economies and could trigger a collapse in demand disastrous to producer states.
