

DrumBeat II: October 20, 2006

Posted by Prof. Goose on October 20, 2006 - 6:23pm

Topic: Miscellaneous

Tags: david isenberg, thomas friedman [list all tags]

Two reads for you tonight, the first, since we are a blog, and the internet remaining free is rather important for our continuing to make an impact, I bring you David Isenberg discussing Bill Moyers' latest over at WorldChanging...the second I bring you is Tom Friedman's talk from Pop!Tech.

What he's doing is giving a talk titled, "Why this is not your parents' energy crisis." His first reason: the war on terror is fueled by our energy purchases, on both sides of the equation. He gives the example of two stories he saw emerging at the same time in the New York Times: a refusal to expand CAFE fuel standards, and the refusal to cut American agricultural subsidies. He tells a story to tie the two together...

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Share Alike 3.0 United States License.