

It's Time for More Green Options

Posted by Prof. Goose on February 8, 2007 - 3:57pm

Topic: Environment/Sustainability

Tags: green options, sustainablog [list all tags]

Friend of TOD Jeff McIntire-Strasburg of sustainablog fame has started a new partnered venture this week that I wanted to bring to your attention called Green Options. Jeff continues to be one of the best greensphere writers, in my opinion, so this should definitely be worth checking out. Here some info about GO:

Green Options, a Berkeley-based renewable energy and green lifestyle company, has launched its web portal, GreenOptions.com, to the public. Visitors to the site will find a wealth of tips and information on how to incorporate environmentally-friendly choices into their lifestyle without major disruptions or costs. The new site features a blog written by nationally-recognized writers from the “Green Blogosphere,” a “Green Life Guide” with information on a wide range of lifestyle subjects, the “Green Report,” which tracks environmentally-focused news developments, and a discussion forum for interacting with other people interested in “Greening the Good Life.”

GO check it out. Heh.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Share Alike 3.0 United States License.