

Reuters presents evidence that Prof. Goose is actually a high ranking administration official

Posted by Nate Hagens on April 1, 2007 - 11:35am

Topic: Site news

Tags: you never know... [list all tags]

Leaks out of Washington DC circulated Saturday that a high ranking administration official may actually be the co-founder of the popular internet energy blog theoil drum.com.

Sources from Reuters early today provided evidence that Presidential political advisor Karl Rove is the internet identity "Professor Goose." Professor Goose plays a central role at the website raising awareness and discussion about the urgency of "Peak Oil." A memo was found on Rove's stationery in a bathroom stall providing evidence for Rove's 'dual role' in directing Bush policy.

Rove, an alleged genius, apparently has decided--in ironic double-Orwellian style--to create and advocate an internet blog to promote awareness of what would be an energy train wreck absent significant policy changes. The memo clearly shows Rove briefing the President

"...finally some Americans are realizing the facts about our energy situation. In my opinion however sir, the urgency of the situation does still not have the critical mass needed for Stage II of your plan "Operation: Sustainable Goose."

The plan, according to an unnamed source in Langley, was to start to mention oil 'addictions' and 'finiteness' in public, but bring support and awareness of the Peak Oil situation to a grass roots tipping point through informed, internationally credible internet blogging on theoil drum.com. Once public concern reached a critical level at "Stage II," the administration would "out of necessity, announce mandatory gas taxes, draconian conservation and efficiency mandates, and 'infrastructure changes.'"

Due to the recent downturn in the housing market, the ongoing middle eastern conflict, and the country's obsession with "American Idol", it was decided at Washington's highest levels that we have too fragile a populace to hear the truth from the White House. In addition, 'outright honesty about oil' would represent an untenable political risk.

This morning, emails to theoil drum.com were not returned. Reuters is efforting this story to find out these important details as we speak.

Sources close to the situation say it is no coincidence this leak coincided with this week's release of the GAO Report on Peak Oil, and expect a Press Conference possibly with the President as early

It should also be noted that there have been previous rumours that Prof. Goose was Jimmy Carter's sweater, the president of Exxon Lee Raymond, "Baghdad Bob," Barack Obama, PM Tony Blair's dentist, Che Guevara, and/or the ubiquitous Saudi Oil Minister, Ali al-Naimi.

[break]

APRIL FOOLS!!

(Don't you wish though??)

Good night, and good luck.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Share Alike 3.0 United States License.