

Soliciting Questions for the API Conference Call on Energy Issues

Posted by Robert Rapier on April 14, 2007 - 11:27am

Topic: Miscellaneous

Tags: american petroleum institute, oil companies, red cavaney [list all tags]

I will participate in another API conference call on energy issues on April 18th, and I would like to solicit questions from readers. The topic will be “Energy and the Environment”, but I would expect they will take any energy-related questions. The speaker will be API CEO Red Cavaney.

I wrote up my impressions of the previous conference call here. You can read the transcript from the first call here along with an audio recording at the API's Energy Tomorrow site.

If you get a chance, read the transcript or listen to the audio recording. This may prompt some questions. I will try to get as many answered as possible, and then I will write up the results. Don't miss this opportunity to have your questions/concerns documented and addressed. If you have a question, please list it. First come, first served.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Share Alike 3.0 United States License.