

Site maintenance at 10p EDT [UPDATED]

Posted by Super G on September 15, 2005 - 2:41pm

Topic: Site news

We are going to do some maintenance on the site this evening at around 10p EDT. The site may be inaccessible for up to 30 minutes. Thank you for your patience.

Update [2005-9-16 0:44:39 by Admin]: Maintenance is done. We've switched web hosts. Hopefully the reliability of the site will improve. If something's broken, let us know.

Update [2005-9-16 8:17:5 by Super G]: One more thing: Users have the option to choose their timezone in their interface preferences. The old server wasn't properly adjusted to daylight savings time, so you had to give your timezone in standard time (EST for East Coast U.S., PST for West Coast U.S.). The new server has the correct setting, so you must adjust your interface preferences for daylight time (EDT for East Coast U.S., PDT for West Coast U.S.).

Also, it seems that the server's clock is about 20 minutes ahead. I have notified the ISP about this. Hopefully it will be addressed soon.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Share Alike 3.0 United States License.